THE SCENARIO

Dana Whitfield, owner of a small Austin property management company, sends tenants plain-text emails for everything. New tenants move in next month, and she wants professional documents that look like they come from one company.

THE TASK

Create a welcome letter, a maintenance request form and a move-in inspection checklist that share one letterhead and style, and that her team can reuse for every new tenant.

WHAT'S INSIDE

Tenant Welcome Letter	p. 2
Maintenance Request Form	p. 3
Move-In Inspection Checklist (3 pages)	p. 4

WHAT IT SHOWS

- Building with Word styles (headings, table labels, table text) instead of manual formatting, so changes apply everywhere at once
- Consistent branding across a document set: one font, one accent color, one letterhead
- Forms designed for real use: tenant and office sections kept separate, with a priority field for triage
- Documents that work together: the letter refers tenants to the form and checklist that come with it
